Arielle Andrews, CCFF:

Tell us if you use recovery capital or recovery capital concepts in your work!

Charles Cofer:

sometimes i use it

Shante Shipp:

We use it in our FTC at initial assessment

Katrina Randleas:

Yes!

Deena Davis:

I use it on parents when they first come into our FTC program and update it throughout their time with us!!

DeAnna Griffin:

being a peer recovery coach, I use it daily.

Deena Davis:

CONGRATS on 30!!!! amazing!!

Colleen Kosinski:

yes but interested in learning more

Tryana Scaramella:

I use Recovery Capitol in my own life and as a Peer Recovery coach. This was introduced to me in the Family Recovery Court rooms by my own coach.

Ashley Armstrong:

We just started incorporating the recovery scale to be completed in each of our phases of the program

Rachelle Cooksey:

We discuss and review protective factors in the initial screening for FTC

Doug Hanshaw:

We are waiting for NDCI to issue phase advancement criteria tied to recovery capital; meanwhile we teach the concept in life skills and in trainings.

Ralph Wolf:

Yes. We lean into communities of recovery in our state level support of the FTCs. One example is our focus on sustainability.

Jennie Lillard:

Hello, Jennie Lillard with the Kialegee Tribal Town

Arielle Andrews, CCFF:

Hi, Jennie! Thanks for joining today!

Arielle Andrews, CCFF:

Tell us your "why" around joining today and the topic of recovery capital!

Charles Cofer:

or year 25

Meg Kenney:

how do you help create that buy in?

Sherri Hampton:

HEY KELLY

Tessa Richter, CCFF:

Great question, Meg. I think Al will address this in his breakout room later if you want to join and ask him directly!

Meg Kenney:

yes thank you Tess and Al, he responded almost immediately like he read my mind :) Sounds great - thanks!

LeAnn McKoy:

Systems are still a little skittish though with informal and natural supports. Acknowledging the cultural connection could help but how do we shift the dynamic at a pace that doesn't create stagnation for families?

Autumn Beattie:

Al, do you use a culture assessment tool that could be used by providers?

Tessa Richter, CCFF:

Great questions. If anyone from the audience has suggestions or ideas, please drop those in here!

Al Falcon:

We do screen for it, but the real magic happens in the therapeutic relationship, sometimes people do not know what these cultural components are because they haven't had the opportunity to explore or nurture this aspect of their lives.

Margaret Isquick:

Is Crystal in a special program at her CPS? what about removing children? How does it work?

Crystal J.:

Yes I work under the Ohio start program

Arielle Andrews, CCFF:

Tessa Richter, CCFF:

Here is info about the Circle of Parents program that Anne mentioned: <http://circleofparents.org/>

jack krebs:

I am planning to implement a connections community dinner with speaker / activity for family involved in healing to wellness court program. Stockbridge Munsee Tribe of WI. Anushiik!

Deena Davis:

I would love to see your other templates for the scale!!

Margaret Isquick:

I the public defender in Cuyahoga County Family Recovery Court. I am working with START Unit, but we never talk about Recovery Capital.

Tessa Richter, CCFF:

Jack- that sounds like an amazing support to put together! Good luck with it!

jack krebs:

I am a protective Factors facilitator - so I will also utilize those as small take and go resource pages. And including an agency of the Stockbridge Community to present as a lunch and learn for the participants to know on the go !

Tessa Richter, CCFF:

Margaret- glad you are here! Hopefully this course and resources will help you bring the concept to your teams!

Arielle Andrews, CCFF:

Hi, Deena. Here is a Recovery Capital Assessment tool: <https://www.chestnut.org/resources/4c4bb112-3d59-4984-98cb-3b637378965a/Recovery-Capital-Scale.pdf>

Tessa Richter, CCFF:

Here's some pictures/info about the mobile child care units that Anne is talking about :)
<https://www.chieftain.com/story/news/2022/04/14/new-mobile-child-care-bus-serve-pueblo-treatment-centers/7311874001/>

Deena Davis:

OMG!! This is so amazing!! RVs!!

Cynthia Branch:

Yes Crystal! Flip the script is what I call it.

Meg Kenney:

love that saying Crystal "re-channel your hustle" I am going to use that

Arielle Andrews, CCFF:

Need help deciding which breakout to join? Below is a description of each breakout room focus

Nichole Brantley:

family tree project...

Tryana Scaramella:

Family Tree Project

Kaitlyn Rice:

Accessing Recovery Capital forms online to complete with clients

Valerie Comrie:

Not placing blame, and meeting people where they are..

Nathaniel Johnson:

great info from Anne about working with people with developmental disability

Paterese Reynolds:

I loved Crystal phrased "Re-challenge your hustle" and I loved the use of RV's for Childcare

Gabrielle Thomas:

Meeting people where they are

Tessa Judkins:

Researching Recovery Capital forms

Tamisha Laster:

Utilizing the Plan of Safe Care to simultaneously address baby and mom's needs

Meg Kenney:

I am going to take back with me "re-channel your hustle" and that I am really going to try and meet clients where they are at, focusing on their likes/goals and how we can bridge these and incorporate them to create buy in, knowing that the process will be slow

Holly Hillenbrand:

Never put one method or way to recovery above another, i.e. treatment, AA, church, etc.

Ellen Doskey:

Loved the "family" tree project - will include all types of family as the definition of family is different for everyone

Melody Wilkes:

Gonna "settle my glitter"

Ashley Armstrong:

Utilizing protective factors screenings with participants

Stephanie Williams:

Next steps: to begin talking about recovery capital with Family Recovery Court, it becomes apart of the dialogue

Tammy Poeschl:

Thank you!

Katrina Randleas:

I love the RV childcare!

Arielle Andrews, CCFF:

FTC Practice Academy Page <https://www.cffutures.org/ftc-practice-academy/>

Carolyn Cornelius:

When working one on one with the parent in recovery capital be sure not to allow the person to put blame on themselves but ensure you're patient with them and listen to their concerns.

Zachary Anderson:

I appreciate the validation of meeting clients where they are at

Shel Douglas:

Thank you to all of the presenters sharing their examples

Charlea Wetzel:

Knowing NJ is not alone in the MAT acceptance by all. Continue to teach and support. Love the comparison of Recovery to all aspects medical, mental health, not just SUD.

Deena Davis:

Always great trainings!!

Michelle Ladehoff:

I really enjoyed this presentation and panel today! Thank you so very much.

Beth Dostal:

Thank You!

Stephanie Williams:

Is the attendance certificate attached to the eval?

Stephanie Williams:

I don't see it either
